OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

- The twin shocks of the rapidly spreading COVID-19 virus and the oil price crash led to a carnage across global markets in March.
- The global economy has moved into a recessionary territory as governments over the world enacted lockdowns in the past month on the back of the COVID-19 spread.
- Markets were quick to price the recession following which, we saw some of the worst monthly asset class performances and even worse intra-month performances in March.
- Given the unprecedented levels of fiscal and monetary stimulus from governments and central banks globally, we are expecting a recovery in asset prices.
- We de-risked the portfolio in early March and believe that holding large amounts of cash and liquid, short term fixed income until markets stabilize, is the best method of controlling risk.
- As the situation evolves, we may look to add risk in order to capitalise on assets offering even greater upside.
- For the moment we are only allocating to the highest quality assets within the risk spectrum.

² The strategy may maintain a large allocation to cash and cash equivalents.

³ Volatility, measured by standard deviation, is annualized and based on monthly observations since Portfolio inception. Standard deviation measures the degree of variation of monthly net returns around the average.

NOTE TO INVESTORS

Definition of Indices:

ICE Overnight USD LIBOR: ICE USD London Interbank Offered Rate.

Asset allocation is approximate as of date listed and subject to change by the Investment Manager without notice.

KEY RISKS

- The value of your investment may fall as well as rise and you may get back less than you originally invested. This Sub-Fund is a fund of funds and therefore will be subject to the risks associated with the underlying funds in which it invests. In addition, the Sub-Fund, in its capacity as an investor in an underlying fund, may be required to pay fees and expenses payable by investors in that underlying fund.
- The value of equity securities may go down as well as up in response to the performance of individual companies and general market conditions. The value of debt securities may change significantly depending on economic and interest rate conditions as well as the credit worthiness of the issuer.
- In addition emerging markets may be subject to increased political, regulatory and economic instability, less developed custody and settlement practices, poor transparency and greater financial risks. Emerging market securities may also be subject to higher volatility and lower liquidity than non emerging market securities. Structured products may be subject to additional risks as they will be exposed not only to the risks inherent to investing directly in the underlying assets but also to the risk that the issuer of the structured product will not meet its payment obligations.
- The value of securities in which the Sub-Fund invests may be influenced by movements in commodity prices which can be very volatile. This is because a small movement in the value of the underlying asset can cause a large movement in the value of the financial derivative instrument and therefore, investment in such instruments may result in losses in excess of the amount invested by the Sub-Fund. Movements in currency exchange rates can adversely affect the return of your investment. The currency hedging that may be used to minimise the effect of currency fluctuations may not always be successful.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR INVESTMENTS AND POTENTIAL CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

Conflicts of interest will arise whenever JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. or any of its affiliates (together, “J.P. Morgan”) have an actual or perceived economic or other incentive in its management of our clients’ portfolios to act in a way that benefits J.P. Morgan. Conflicts will result, for example (to the extent the following activities are permitted in your account): (1) when J.P. Morgan invests in an investment product, such as a mutual fund, structured product, separately managed account or hedge fund issued or managed by JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. or an affiliate, such as J.P. Morgan Investment Management Inc.; (2) when a J.P. Morgan entity obtains services, including trade execution and trade clearing, from an affiliate; (3) when J.P. Morgan receives payment as a result of purchasing an investment product for a client’s account; or (4) when J.P. Morgan receives payment for providing services (including shareholder servicing, recordkeeping or custody) with respect to investment products purchased for a client’s portfolio. Other conflicts will result because of relationships that J.P. Morgan has with other clients or when J.P. Morgan acts for its own account.

Investment strategies are selected from both J.P. Morgan and third-party asset managers and are subject to a review process by our manager research teams. From this pool of strategies, our portfolio construction teams select those strategies we believe fit our asset allocation goals and forward looking views in order to meet the portfolio’s investment objective.

As a general matter, we prefer J.P. Morgan managed strategies. We expect the proportion of J.P. Morgan managed strategies will be high (in fact, up to 100 percent) in strategies such as, for example, cash and high-quality fixed income, subject to applicable law and any account-specific considerations.

While our internally managed strategies generally align well with our forward looking views, and we are familiar with the investment processes as well as the risk and compliance philosophy of the firm, it is important
